Dear Friends,

What a year to mark the 75th anniversary of the Foundation! The dramatic end to the spring semester due to the coronavirus reminded us that life has a habit of ignoring whatever grand plans we have for it. Thriving requires us to be resilient, dedicated, and lucky.

There were certainly moments this year to rejoice. An anonymous Morehead-Cain donated $10 million to the Program and inspired the $20 million Give Together Scholarship Challenge. It is the largest single gift from an alumnus or alumna to the Program in its history. Ashton Martin '20 served as Carolina's first Native American student body president. Scholars received Schwarzman, Churchill, Gates Cambridge, Truman, and Luce Scholarships. Eight scholars distinguished themselves with Chancellor's Awards, the University's highest honor for leadership and academic achievement.

However, this year was also marked with deep sadness. Last fall, we grieved the tragic loss of Wynn Burrus '20, and of Sally Sasz '21 the following summer. Both were joyous advocates of the Program and beloved by their classmates. Our thoughts remain with their families.

Spring brought the new and unprecedented challenge of the coronavirus. Days after Final Selection Weekend, we found ourselves confronting an uncertain and physically distanced world. The COVID-19 pandemic sent students home, forced classes online, and denied graduating seniors the opportunity to celebrate their accomplishments together in person. The Summer Enrichment Program went remote to the extent possible, but travel restrictions diminished the scholars' opportunities.

It seems somehow appropriate that this important moment of uncertainty about the future and reckoning with the past coincides with the 75th anniversary of Morehead-Cain this fall.

Executive Director Chuck Lovelace '77 speaking at the All-Scholar Kickoff

John Motley Morehead signed the indenture establishing the Foundation on November 21, 1945. The world had just emerged from the long shadow cast by the second World War, which had ended a few months before. The future was hopeful. The first order of business for the new foundation was to build a planetarium, since visited and enjoyed by millions.

As we reflect on the past seven decades, we are immensely proud of the impact that we have had on the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Over 3,200 Morehead-Cain Scholars and Fellows have left a legacy of leadership and service to the University community and in their lives thereafter. Their contributions to society are simply immeasurable.

But we are not proud of our entire history, and as the nation refocuses the national conversation on race and racism, we must also reflect on our mistakes. The truth is that in our early years, promising young leaders were denied the opportunity to apply to this program due to the color of their skin or their gender. We did not begin offering undergraduate scholarships to Black students until 1968 and to women until 1975. This was wrong—even for its time.

The decisions by the Program then do not represent the values of the Program today. We are committed to racial reconciliation, and we promise to be deliberate and focused to ensure that this program is welcoming to and supportive of scholars from every background.

I close with heartfelt thanks to retiring trustees Lucy Chatham and Ken Thompson '73, as well as to former Scholarship Fund Chair Keith Cowan '78, for their remarkable commitment to the Foundation and our scholars. We are grateful for their many years of service.

With appreciation,

Charles E.
Lovelace, Jr. '77
Executive Director

Dear Friends,

By all accounts, this has been a tough year. I have been reminded that most important things are beyond our control and that life, with all its joys and beauty, will inevitably turn tragic for a period. This year we lost two scholars, each of whom was tremendously talented—a gift to our program—and left us far too soon. Their losses hit us hard. I wept for them, and I continue to grieve for their families and friends. The remainder of our troubles this year—frankly—pale in contrast to the untimely and devastating deaths of Wynn Burrus and Sally Sasz.

As Shakespeare said, though, sorrows seldom come as single spies but in battalions. We were hit with a global pandemic, which required us to cancel most all of our summer programs, and our students have—like much of the country—been thrown into “virtual learning.” If this weren’t enough, we’ve been required to come to grips with the painful legacy of racial discrimination, which continues to affect our students, scholars, and alumni, all amidst the shadow of a campus statue dedicated in a shamefully racist address that remains difficult to comprehend even with the indulgence of historical perspective.

But in the face of this, I continue to feel incredible gratitude.

This Foundation, as I tell the candidates every Finals Weekend, is perpetual. We keep on keeping on. I am grateful for our benefactors: both chemical engineers, both of whom fought for the country in World Wars, neither of whom had children of their own, but who each believed that—in the face of tremendous challenges—the very best way to improve our society’s future is to bring talented young leaders to a great University and set them free to discover their talents.

Almost lost in the midst of all of this has been the Foundation’s search for a successor to Chuck Lovelace, who has been an absolutely superb leader of our Foundation, and who has graciously agreed to stay on another year in this transition. We shall soon announce the new president of the Foundation, who has been occupied with his own challenges in the international educational community, but we are tremendously excited about the talents he will bring to the Foundation. More on that soon.

The generosity of our alumni—in giving their time, mentoring, and financial support—continues to be extraordinary and displays, yet again, the promise of our future. We have reorganized our governance to welcome the chair of the Scholarship Fund Board as a full member of our board of trustees. Welcome, Jen Halsey Evans! And the departing wisdom and perspective of Lucy Chatham and Ken Thompson will be missed on our board as we welcome the return of Holly Gwynne-Timothy and the new service of Peter Larkin.

When I was a high school senior, my father told me that—due to the competitiveness of the Morehead Program—I was not likely to be selected. Although that wounded my confidence, he was probably right—our Program remains extremely selective and it requires a measure of good fortune to make it through the process. But what remains with me—and I hope with you—is the tremendous honor in being selected as a Morehead-Cain Scholar and all that designation means. It is a lifelong honor, and we are committed to making sure the Program continues and expands upon its excellence.

So, with a grateful heart, thank you. Amidst our struggles, the future is bright. The challenges will always come, there is work to do, and we are hardly perfect. But we remain laser focused on our mission and ensuring this continues to be the best scholarship program in the country.

With my best regards,

David C. Wright, III '80

75th ANNIVERSARY MOREHEAD-CAIN

Setting potential free for 75 years

The Morehead-Cain Foundation was born on November 21, 1945. Founded by John Motley Morehead III, its mission has remained the same since its founding: Sustain and enhance the excellence of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

During their time on campus, Morehead-Cain Scholars dedicate themselves to the betterment of the University and to striving for the highest of personal standards.

As part of the Program and beyond, they embark on life-changing experiences across the globe. In small communities and the biggest cities. What binds them is a shared value to use their talents for good.

These are some of their stories.

I experienced firsthand how the Morehead-Cain changes the life of a first-generation college student. If I can be a tiny part of making an experience like mine possible for other high school students, sign me up 'til the end.

Day of Giving

NOVEMBER 25, 2019

The Morehead-Cain community held its fourth Day of Giving on November 25, 2019—a one-day giving blitz that inspired alumni and friends around the world and celebrated the Program’s founding in 1945.

From in-person visits to social media posts that reached tens of thousands of people, the Morehead-Cain family spent the day sharing their stories of inspiration and gratitude.

Your support put the Program in position to reach new heights by year’s end. By the end of the day, nearly 1,000 alumni had made their academic-year gift to the Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund. And the day raised more than $287,000 in all.

Mark your calendar for the 2020 Morehead-Cain Day of Giving on Friday, November 20. This year we will celebrate Morehead-Cain’s 75 years and honor a legacy of transformational generosity among scholars, alumni, and friends of the Program.

Lucy Hanes Chatham Steps Down from the Board of Trustees After 36 Years of Service

In Lucy Hanes Chatham's lifetime, the trustee has watched the Morehead-Cain Foundation grow from a fledgling program to a global community comprising more than 3,200 scholars and alumni.

Lucy, who is a cousin of John Motley Morehead III, spoke with Morehead-Cain this past spring to share some of her earliest memories of the founder and to reflect on her most meaningful contributions as a member of the board of trustees and as its longtime chair. She will step down this year after 36 years of service.

Early beginnings of lifelong service

Lucy's connections to Morehead-Cain began when she was a child. She was born in a small town outside Elkin, North Carolina, in 1949 (just four years after John Motley signed the indenture establishing the Foundation and eight years before the first full class of undergraduate Morehead Scholars graduated from UNC).

"Uncle Mot," as the benefactor is affectionately known, and Lucy's grandfather, John Lindsay Morehead, would often visit the Chatham family's home near the foot of the Blue Ridge Mountains. The pair would exchange ideas with her father, Hugh G. Chatham (a Foundation trustee from 1950 to 1985, and a chair of the board for almost two decades), about how to institute and expand the first merit scholarship in the United States.

"John Motley was the one with the vision and the means to do something at the University of North Carolina, and John Lindsay was the architect of the Program," she said. "The two of them worked hand-in-hand to make Morehead-Cain happen."

Although dinner discussions often revolved around the Foundation's plans, both John Motley and John Lindsay would make time to put business aside and play with Lucy and her three younger siblings.

"I was the oldest, so I always got the most attention, but I also got to sit in for a lot of those conversations," said the trustee, who recalled evenings during Uncle Mot's visits and being mesmerized by his pocket watch with "all of the fancy chimes" and his stories of world travels. (The philanthropist, who graduated from UNC with a degree in chemical engineering in 1891, was responsible for the development of the Morehead Planetarium, which he built and then donated to the University in 1949, and the Morehead-Patterson Bell Tower, dedicated to the University in 1931).

John Lindsay passed away in the fall of 1964, when Lucy was 15 years old, and John Motley the following winter. While she feels nothing but fondness for those early days, there've been plenty of moments in her adult life when she wished for their guidance as chair of the board.

"Over the years, there've been so many questions that I would have loved to have been able to ask them about different aspects of the Foundation, and whether we were on track or deviating at certain times," Lucy said. "But I can say unequivocally for both of them: They would be so proud of what Morehead-Cain has become and what the alumni have done to make the Program what it is today. It is so much more than they ever envisioned."

Breaking down gender barriers

Lucy's professional involvement with Morehead-Cain began in 1978 when she became one of the first two women to serve on the Central Selection Committee.

Being chosen felt like an experiment of sorts to determine "whether they really wanted to continue with female interviewers to begin with," she said. The Foundation had selected the first class of scholars that included undergraduate women in 1975.

Although Carolina had officially begun enrolling women as graduate students in 1897, women weren't admitted at the undergraduate level using the same admissions standards as those used for men until 1972, when Title IX was passed by Congress.

The "experiment" was a triumph. The following Final Selection Weekend, each of the four committees included a woman. Morehead-Cain's first undergraduate class including female scholars graduated in 1979.

We'll adjust because we're flexible, and with our alumni community, the Foundation has its best years ahead.

Lucy Hanes Chatham

In the ensuing years, Lucy said the responses that female finalists gave during their interviews reflected the broader evolution of the women's rights movement in the United States. By the time she joined the board of trustees in 1985, Lucy had witnessed a dramatic shift in the tone of conversations.

For example, "instead of women expressing that they wanted to be nurses, you had some who were beginning to see themselves as doctors as well as nurses," she said. "You would hear them talking more about research and many of the professions that had traditionally only been considered open to men."

As for her part, Lucy said she was brought up in a forward-thinking family whose father encouraged his children to pursue any dreams they wanted, but to remember that they'd "better be darn good at it."

She chose the West Coast to advance her education after high school. Following her graduation from Pomona College in Claremont, California, Lucy worked as an assistant to the president of Sunset Magazine, a lifestyle-based publication in Menlo Park.

After gaining three years of experience in the business sector, she returned to North Carolina to earn a JD degree from Duke University School of Law. Lucy joined her family's textile company, Chatham Manufacturing Company, in Elkin. After a two-month "crash course" in industrial engineering in Charlotte and time spent working throughout the mills, she was named corporate secretary and legal counsel before ultimately stepping down as vice chair of the company's board when Chatham Manufacturing was sold in 1989.

Despite having worked in various male-dominated industries, Lucy never felt that her vocational options were gender dependent.

"I've found that most people are willing to recognize you for your efforts, your work ethic, and your sincerity," she said. "It always helps to have a sense of humor, though."

I encourage everyone to be involved, not only in Morehead-Cain, but also in your communities. Your contributions are needed now more than ever.

Former Chair of the Morehead-Cain Foundation Board of Trustees

Chairing the Board

In 2007, the Gordon and Mary Cain Foundation granted $100 million to the scholarship program.

The Foundation (known thereafter as the Morehead-Cain Foundation) was able to “leapfrog ahead” from offering 50 scholarships to 75 per class. Lucy said the transformative contribution, and the collaborative nature of the work, facilitated a relationship with Mary Cain, who had established her Texas-based foundation with her husband in 1988.

“Not only did I get the opportunity of working with Mary on the gift, but I ended up with a great friendship; from that standpoint, I got two gifts from the whole thing,” Lucy said.

As chair of Morehead-Cain’s board of trustees from 2006 to 2016, Lucy also oversaw the beginning years of the Foundation’s official fundraising efforts. She described the decision, made in 2004, as a highly controversial choice at the time.

“John Motley had been very clear that he did not expect the alumni to give back to the Foundation because he felt that the Program had sufficient resources,” she said. “But over the years, as academic inflation ate away at the corpus, and ideas from the trustees about what we wanted to offer to students grew, it became clear we were going to need additional funding in order to be able to keep the Foundation doing what it had prided itself on doing.”

While it was a challenging time for the Foundation, punctuated by the Great Recession in 2008, Lucy attributed the success of the fundraising initiative to strong staff leadership and alumni support. Since then, Morehead-Cains have committed more than $75 million to the Program.

Lucy said the success of the Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund board, established in 2004, has been one of the most fulfilling aspects of her tenure with the Foundation.

“The MCSF board’s new ideas and fresh energy, combined with the trustees’ strategic planning, make the two bodies complement each other wonderfully.”

Despite the current challenges presented by the coronavirus pandemic, Lucy strongly believes that the Foundation’s agility and resilience will keep the Program secure and thriving.

“We’ll adjust because we’re flexible, and with our alumni community, the Foundation has its best years ahead.”

Lucy received an executive MBA from the University of North Carolina Business School, now known as the UNC Kenan-Flagler Business School, in 1985 (“finally making me a UNC alumna,” she said).

Lucy currently resides in Camden, South Carolina, with her husband, Alvin Shaw, their four cats, three horses, and two dogs, where she continues to consult with both corporate clients and family offices. Over the years, she’s served on the boards of numerous corporate, governmental, and nonprofit organizations. Her focus continues to be on education, conservation, and animal welfare.

Lucy’s parting words: “I encourage everyone to be involved, not only in Morehead-Cain, but also in your communities. Your contributions are needed now more than ever.”

From the Scholarship Fund Board Chair

KEITH COWAN '78

Dear Friends and Fellow Alumni,

My 10 years as chair of the Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund Board are now at an end. Thanks to each of you for making it an extraordinary and joyful journey. Your support of our Program has known no boundaries and has defied my highest expectations.

Being a Morehead-Cain Scholar is more than a four-year commitment. With your support, it has evolved into an opportunity for lifetime engagement with a vibrant network of alumni and scholars. Thanks to Chuck, Megan, and the talented staff, we are blessed to share this lifelong bond. We can continue to build our leadership skills and pursue the common good. And, the Program has become an incredible platform to give back to Carolina in ways that benefit the University, North Carolina, the U.S., and the world.

Ten years ago, the Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund Board set out to engage with all Morehead-Cain Alumni and “sustain, grow, and enhance” the Scholarship Program. Our journey began in the gloom of the Great Recession. While the Foundation’s resources remained strong in the aftermath of the financial crisis, the economic reality of rising tuition and other costs presented the Program with a hard choice. We could resist asking alumni for support, knowing that the Program would shrink below 50 scholars per class, or we could ask for alumni support to help the Program stabilize and thereafter grow.

By now, you know the decision we made. With your enthusiastic support, we sailed past our initial $50 million goal in six years. The new vision became “75”—could we raise gifts and pledges of $75 million, allowing the Program to expand to 75 scholars per class, by the Foundation’s 75th anniversary?

Collectively, you responded with yes, yes, and yes! You have embraced the vision of becoming a “third benefactor,” joining John Motley Morehead III and Gordon and Mary Cain in their stewardship of the Program. Almost 70 percent of all Morehead-Cains have given to the Program during the past decade.

I am grateful to each of you for your dedication to each other, scholars, nominees, staff, and the Program. You have interviewed, recruited, mentored, facilitated summer enrichment experiences, created job and career opportunities, and accepted countless phone calls from fellow Morehead-Cains. Many of you are helping envision the future of our Program and offering your wisdom and guidance to efforts that will enhance the experience for scholars. And I hope, with more than a thousand of you attending Alumni Forums and other events, you are rediscovering how enriching, inspiring, and purposeful it is to be a Morehead-Cain for life.

My experience on the Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund Board, working with you and receiving your wisdom, has humbled me. There is no way to know what the next 75 years will bring, but I do know with certainty that Morehead-Cains will continue to be a source of leadership and a force for good in the world. You have demonstrated the extraordinary power of our network. Please continue to look for new ways to work together and leave your “Heel Prints” across the world.

In advance, thank you for supporting Jennifer Halsey Evans '94. Jen is a brilliant and enthusiastic leader who, in taking my place as Fund Board Chair, will also serve as an ex officio trustee of the Foundation. The Program, like all institutions and organizations, will face a series of complex challenges in the coming years. Many cannot be fully anticipated, but I know that the future is bright with your boundless support and leadership.

As Morehead-Cains, and as a family, please continue to collaborate and to achieve good in the world, and please celebrate your leadership and successes, together.

Warmest and best wishes,

Keith Cowan '78

Anonymous Donor Honors Morehead-Cain's and Carolina's Legacy of Impact with $10 Million Match Challenge

We are grateful to the anonymous Morehead-Cain Alumnus who donated $10 million last fall to the Morehead-Cain Scholarship and challenged fellow Morehead-Cains and all Carolina alumni to match the gift together. It is the largest single monetary gift ever made to the Program by one of its alumni.

"This distinguished scholarship program plays an integral role in helping our University shape the next generation of innovative leaders," said Chancellor Kevin M. Guskiewicz. "With this incredible donor's generosity and the support of the entire Carolina community, we will have a life-changing impact on so many students' lives who will benefit each year from this amazing gift."

The donation allows Morehead-Cain to maintain a community of 75 scholars per class.

"Attending Carolina as a Morehead-Cain Scholar changed my life many years ago, and it's been exciting to watch the Foundation grow and evolve and continue to have such a powerful impact on our University," the anonymous donor said. "I'm humbled to be able to join so many of my fellow alumni in supporting the Foundation. We were given so much, and I do think the Foundation's future greatness is now up to us."

Meeting the challenge would also allow the Program to exceed its $75 million fundraising goal under the University's historic $4.25 billion fundraising campaign, For All Kind: the Campaign for Carolina.

"The generosity of this gift, and gifts from all Carolina alumni, allow us to invite more bright, young leaders to Carolina than ever before," said Executive Director Chuck Lovelace '77.

“Reaching our fundraising goals ensures the decades-long relationship between the Program and Carolina will continue to thrive and grow for years to come.”

The Give Together Scholarship Challenge came on the heels of a record fundraising year for the Morehead-Cain Foundation and Carolina. During the 2018–2019 fiscal year, 56 percent of Morehead-Cain Alumni contributed to For All Kind: the Campaign for Carolina. A billion dollars of the University’s fundraising goal is devoted to scholarships and student aid through a signature fundraising initiative, The Carolina Edge.

“Carolina is committed to leading for the greater good,” said David Routh, vice chancellor for Development at UNC-Chapel Hill. “Gifts such as these allow us to provide more opportunities to more outstanding students. They change the lives of hardworking students and their families.”

With this incredible donor’s generosity and the support of the entire Carolina community, we will have a life-changing impact on so many students’ lives who will benefit each year from this amazing gift.

YEAR IN REVIEW PROFILE

MCSF Chair Keith Cowan '78 Steps Down After Decade-Long Tenure

Keith Cowan '78 stepped down this spring as chair of the Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund (MCSF) Board after 12 years of service. Jennifer Halsey Evans '94 has succeeded Keith as chair and will now lead the 19-member board of directors.

Keith joined the MCSF board in 2008, a year after the Foundation received the Gordon and Mary Cain Foundation's $100 million gift.

"For my first few months on the MCSF board, our most pressing concerns about the financial sustainability of the Program had dissipated, and the board, under the leadership of founding chair Frank Craighill '61, was able to focus on confirming its reputation as the leading merit scholarship in the country," said the Atlanta-based alumnus, who received degrees in economics and political science from UNC and a JD from the University of Virginia's School of Law in 1982.

The market collapse in the fall of 2008, however, reinforced the need to grow development efforts in order to stop the decline in the number of participating scholars. John Motley Morehead III had opposed the idea of asking alumni for direct monetary support, preferring to put faith in his original endowment, according to Keith. Even with the Cain gift, the severe decline of funds wrought by the crisis dictated a new strategy.

"We faced multiple financial threats, yet there was an even stronger desire to build Morehead-Cain back to 60 scholars per class," said the former chair, noting that the Program had shrunk to 34 graduating scholars that year.

When Keith accepted the position as chair of the Fund in 2010, succeeding Frank, he swiftly worked with the board to establish a strategic plan that would sustain, grow, and enhance the Program and to develop a fundraising campaign through the "Morehead Scholarship Foundation," as the board was previously called, co-established by Barbara Rosser Hyde '83 in 2004.

We had 2,500 alumni at the time who felt in their hearts and souls that Morehead-Cain had presented them with opportunities that were essential in developing their skills and in enriching their lives; all we had to do was tap into that goodwill.

“We had 2,500 alumni at the time who felt in their hearts and souls that Morehead-Cain had presented them with opportunities that were essential in developing their skills and in enriching their lives; all we had to do was tap into that goodwill,” he said. “As soon as the case for giving was made to our alumni, their support poured in, with each determined to ensure that future candidates would have the same opportunities that they received as scholars.”

Morehead-Cain Alumni contributed or pledged over $50 million within five years (a total that has since grown to over $75 million), a show of support that helped inform the decision by the Foundation Trustees to raise the number of scholars to 75 per class beginning in 2017, according to Keith. Countless other alumni have also offered their assistance in assessing and interviewing candidates, recruiting recipients, speaking with and mentoring scholars, hosting and attending regional events, and providing Summer Enrichment, internship, and study abroad opportunities.

Over the past decade, Keith said that it has been most fulfilling to watch alumni engagement efforts flourish in significantly enhancing the four-year program but also in witnessing the lifetime enrichment of participating in the alumni network among “cousins.”

“Together, we have expanded the Morehead-Cain Alumni Forum, added more regional events, launched mentorship programs for current scholars, expanded job and other professional opportunities within the Morehead-Cain Network, and partnered with each other in a multitude of other ways,” said Keith, who is also a vice chair for Atlanta’s Fox Theatre and the Georgia Intellectual Property Alliance. “We’ve enjoyed learning from one another as we go through our personal journeys and in fulfilling the commitment to UNC-Chapel Hill, North Carolina, and the country, that we each implicitly made when we joined the Program.”

Under Jen’s leadership, Keith said he expects that the MCSF board will continue to encourage the active engagement of alumni, increase the lifetime value of the Morehead-Cain, and drive the collective role of all scholars and alumni to be a force for pursuing the common good.

“There are no limits to what Jen can accomplish as chair with the full support of each of our alumni,” said Keith, who will continue to serve on the board as chair of the governance committee. “Jen will quickly discover that no matter what mission, vision, or initiative she proposes for consideration, her fellow Morehead-Cain Alumni will embrace and refine the idea, and make it better, bigger, and more audacious, while never losing sight of their goal to develop leadership and find collaborative solutions.”

Keith is the founder of Cowan Consulting Corporation LLC. He is also the CEO and chair of Venadar, a corporate growth firm with a focus on the industries of telecommunications, healthcare, and consumer products.

Together, we have expanded the Morehead-Cain Alumni Forum, added more regional events, launched mentorship programs for current scholars, expanded job and other professional opportunities within the Morehead-Cain Network, and partnered with each other in a multitude of other ways. We've enjoyed learning from one another as we go through our personal journeys and in fulfilling the commitment to UNC-Chapel Hill, North Carolina, and the country, that we each implicitly made when we joined the Program.

1969 | Richard Matthews of Greensboro becomes the first Black scholar to accept the Morehead and attend Carolina

The Selection Process

The Morehead-Cain selection cycle begins as five distinct processes, each leveraging the expertise of Foundation staff, a corps of professional readers, and hundreds of alumni and volunteer evaluators. Most candidates enter our process via nomination—either their schools’ or their own—in addition to particularly strong Early Action applicants referred by the UNC Office of Undergraduate Admissions. Our team of readers renders initial assessments and makes recommendations. It is the task of these assessors to answer the essential question: Should this applicant be considered for a semifinal interview?

At the semifinalist stage, all candidates from each of the five processes—in-state, out-of-state, international, affiliate organization, and Admissions Referral candidates—interview via an automated asynchronous online video interview platform. These recorded interviews are reviewed by Foundation staff and trained Morehead-Cain Alumni. After the British candidates complete the recorded video interviews, the resulting group is also interviewed in person in London. At all levels, from the initial written application through the professional reading and video interviews, we garner valuable information about the semifinalists that helps us shape our finalist pool.

In 2019–2020, 139 finalists were identified and invited to campus for Final Selection Weekend—the point where all five selection pathways converge. For nearly four days, finalists explore Carolina and complete one twenty-minute panel interview with members of our Central Selection Committee and one forty-five-minute group activity evaluated by assessors. These interviews are designed to be warm and inviting, and to set the candidates at ease so that they might confidently represent themselves. Interviews are weighed and discussed at length, after which interviewer groups make final recommendations to Morehead-Cain trustees and selection staff. Scholarship offers are ultimately made to slightly more than half of our finalist group.

In mid-March, recruitment efforts ramp up as we mobilize Carolina faculty and administrators, current scholars, and Morehead-Cain Alumni to reach out to our awardees and encourage them to accept our offer. The finalized class is announced to the public in April.

The British Selection Process

All British secondary schools are eligible to participate in the Morehead-Cain selection process. Administration of the British Programme and selection process is coordinated by the Morehead-Cain Foundation. The London-based British Morehead-Cain Scholarship Committee—established by British Morehead-Cain Alumni—oversees the selection process in Great Britain. The scholarship committee designates a selection committee each year, a subcommittee of which reviews nominees' video interviews and selects semifinalists. A larger committee then interviews semifinalists in London and selects four students to interview as finalists in Chapel Hill. The selection committee works closely with a number of educational charities and associations, including the Sutton Trust and the US-UK Fulbright Commission, and also with Winston House—UNC's home in London.

The Canadian Selection Process

Any qualified student graduating from an accredited high school or CEGEP in Canada may either be nominated for the Morehead-Cain Scholarship by his or her school or apply for the scholarship as a self-nominee. The Foundation has also partnered with Shad Canada—a youth-empowerment organization that offers STEAM and entrepreneurship programs for high school students at 17 university campuses each year. All Shad participants are invited to submit applications for the Morehead-Cain during their final year of high school. Canadian semifinalists are selected by professional and staff readers and participate in a video interview, which is reviewed by trained Canadian Alumni.

Approximately four Canadian semifinalists are selected to interview as finalists in Chapel Hill.

Summer Enrichment Program

The hallmark of the Morehead-Cain Scholarship, the Summer Enrichment Program (SEP) continues to provide new and exciting stretch experiences for scholars. Scholars have access to unique opportunities that will prepare them to be the leaders of the next generation.

The Summer Enrichment Program now has two distinct phases. The first two summers, Outdoor Leadership and Civic Collaboration, are the fundamental summers. These are shared and team-based experiences designed to help scholars better understand themselves, each other, and their greater communities.

Outdoor Leadership

During the Outdoor Leadership summer, incoming scholars spend several weeks in the North American wilderness on a leadership course that tests their limits and inspires self-discovery. We have recently provided a small number of scholars the opportunity to participate in a National Outdoor Leadership School (NOLS) course in Alaska made up of only Morehead-Cain Scholars.

Civic Collaboration

Civic Collaboration is the second summer in the Summer Enrichment Program. Teams of scholars work together to take a deep dive into a city issue, collaborate with local change-makers, and determine how they might contribute to the cause in their own way. This summer challenges scholars to manage ambiguity and rely on the strengths of their team.

Global Perspective

The third and fourth summers are the self-designed summers. These summers allow scholars to personalize their learning with experiences that suit their interests, academic paths, and career goals. To ensure that all scholars have significant international experiences, we launched the Global Perspective summer last year. Scholars can design a global experience of their choice and combine modes of learning such as research, self-study, service, internship, shadowing, or purposeful travel. Scholars may also apply for summer study abroad programs in conjunction with their self-designed global projects.

Professional Experience

Finally, scholars cap their undergraduate experiences with an internship during the Professional Experience summer. Scholars seek professional work experiences in any field or industry. With the full resources of the Morehead-Cain Foundation staff, Morehead-Cain Alumni, and friends of the Program behind them, scholars have countless opportunities at their fingertips.

The Morehead-Cain Summer Enrichment Program provides experiences that many students might not be able to arrange or afford on their own. They receive stipends each summer to cover expenses, and benefit from a community of more than 3,200 alumni who are eager to support scholars in their journeys. With guidance from Morehead-Cain advisors, scholars tailor their summers to explore and expand their personal and professional interests—wherever in the world those interests may take them.

Unfortunately, due to the impacts of the coronavirus pandemic, most scholars' 2020 Summer Enrichment Program plans were cancelled or postponed. In response, many scholars attended summer school classes at UNC, supported by Discovery Fund grants. Many others also arranged remote internships, thanks to the generous offers of many Morehead-Cain Alumni.

1987 | Mrs. Perry, beloved by Morehead Scholars and Alumni, retires after 27 years of service as the Foundation's administrative assistant

1988 | Morehead selection committees in North Carolina are reorganized to make the selection process more uniform across the state; the number of schools allocated to a local committee and the number of committee members in each location are standardized; rotating terms of service for committee members are implemented; more alumni are included on committees

1989 | Brien Lewis '90 is the first international student elected student body president at UNC

The John Motley Morehead Society

The John Motley Morehead Society was created in 2007 to recognize the legacy gifts of alumni and friends and to pay tribute to the founder of the Morehead-Cain Program. John Motley Morehead III believed that an investment in the education of young leaders would yield the greatest return and make the biggest difference in our world. It was this conviction that led him to establish a trust in 1945 to support the scholarship program and to turn it into a permanent legacy through a substantial gift by bequest in 1965. It is this same conviction that inspires the planned giving of alumni and friends.

Jennifer Halsey Evans '94 Elected Chair of the Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund Board

The Morehead-Cain Scholarship Fund (MCSF) Board of Directors has elected Jennifer Halsey Evans '94 as chair to succeed Keith Cowan '78 (refer to page 78 to read more on the former chair's ten-year tenure).

Jen joined the MCSF board in 2010 and became vice chair in 2019 while serving as chair of the alumni engagement committee, a role that Brian Strong '00 assumed in July.

She said that leading the board provides opportunities to have a greater impact at Carolina by working even more closely with our alumni community, the Chancellor's office, and our peer organizations at the University.

"Many groups on campus have an interest in Morehead-Cain's work and support our scholars, including Honors Carolina, our program in entrepreneurship, and our business school," said Jen, who graduated from Carolina as a member of Phi Beta Kappa with degrees in political science and communication studies with Highest Honors and Distinction.

For the past three years, Jen has served with Barbara Rosser Hyde '83 on the steering committee for the Campaign for Carolina, an initiative led by David Routh, the vice chancellor for University Development and chief executive of the UNC-Chapel Hill Foundation. As of June, the campaign had raised $3.26 billion toward its goal of raising $4.25 billion by the winter of 2022. Jen joins C. Austin Stephens, Michael D. Kennedy, and Vicki Craver in leading the closing phase of the five-year campaign.

She said her work with the campaign, from planning to implementation, has provided her a “substantive opportunity to understand the University’s strengths and greatest needs” and to contribute to the institution’s overall success. Jen previously served as chair of the 200-member Board of Visitors for UNC.

During her time at Carolina as an undergraduate, Jen was elected Speaker of the Student Congress. She said her experiences leading the legislative branch of UNC’s Student Government informed her passion for advocating on behalf of students to address educational and social inequities.

“I’m grateful to have the resources now to be able to lead and to build bridges for students who need access and opportunity to achieve their goals and dreams,” said the chair, who described her own humble upbringing as a continual source of energy and motivation to open doors for others.

Twenty years of building community among Tar Heels on the West Coast

Jen, who resides in San Francisco and Atherton, California, is also co-chair of Carolina West, a consortium of UNC alumni on the West Coast. Through a collaboration with UNC’s Department of Economics and Honors Carolina, the alumna led an undergraduate honors seminar on entrepreneurship in Silicon Valley for two spring semesters in 2017 and 2018.

By connecting aspiring student entrepreneurs with more seasoned UNC alumni in the Bay Area for internships, company site visits, and mentoring opportunities, our communities reinforce each other, according to Jen.

When you are a part of the Carolina community in the Bay Area, that’s just as meaningful an experience as it would be in Chapel Hill; Carolina is alive and well and thriving here.

Jen Halsey Evans '94 during her Outdoor Leadership Summer

“Of all of my work with the University, encouraging our students and supporting their entrepreneurial instincts and efforts may have been the most meaningful,” said Jen, who has four children of her own, ages 15, 13, 10, and 7. “We have a group of deeply committed alumni in the Bay Area who, over the course of 20 years, have created a community that supports everything from mentoring and job creation to social life and sports.”

She said this framework of support has been and will continue to be especially vital during the current challenges presented by the coronavirus pandemic.

Leading medical technology innovation

Jen is an investor who focuses on accelerating growth for medical technology startups in California. Her portfolio companies develop products to improve therapy in interventional neuroradiology, oncology, diabetes management, and digital diagnostics.

Companion Medical, her primary portfolio investment, designed the first FDA-cleared “smart insulin pen” that uses Bluetooth technology and an integrated disease management mobile app to help insulin users know how much insulin to take and when to take it.

The potentially life-saving functionalities of the InPen system are even more critical during a pandemic, according to Jen.

“Those with diabetes are at higher risk of severe illness, and InPen enables seamless remote monitoring with caretakers and physicians,” she said.

Jen’s interest in innovation at the intersection of healthcare and technology began immediately following her graduation from Carolina. Her first job led her to New York as a financial analyst in healthcare investment banking with Goldman Sachs in 1994. Her experience in finance paved the way for future roles, including serving as senior vice president of strategy and business development for Varian Medical Systems, the global leader in cancer therapy. She’s made the West Coast her home base since.

Finding a forever second home in Chapel Hill

The North Carolina native (nominated for the Morehead-Cain by Walter M. Williams High School in Burlington) said that she returns to Chapel Hill as often as 10 times a year and plans to increasingly live bicoastal.

Jen’s family connections to UNC run deep: she and her four older siblings all attended Carolina. Her seven nieces and nephews, as well as her stepdaughter and stepson, have either graduated from the University, are current students, or hope to enroll soon.

“We regularly commute between San Francisco and Chapel Hill for commitments on campus and to spend time with our extended family,” Jen said.

Growing up in a large family with what she described as minimal means, the chair recalled the moment on her 18th birthday when she found out she’d received the Morehead-Cain.

“I fell to my knees, overcome with emotion, because I knew that this was a defining moment in my life and that now, there were no limits to what would be possible,” she said.

Jen Halsey Evans '94 has been a vital champion of Morehead-Cain and Carolina in the Bay Area

After many years of service dedicated to strengthening the Morehead-Cain Program, Jen experienced a sense of clarity in her appreciation for the Foundation following a visit to Chapel Hill last fall.

"I was so moved by the warm welcome and thoughtful care and attention that every person associated with Morehead-Cain offered to me and my family," said Jen, who acknowledged the leadership of Executive Director Chuck Lovelace '77 and Associate Director and Director of Alumni Engagement Megan Mazzocchi for much of her personal growth as a student leader and throughout her life.

Jen said the most tangible way to express her appreciation and reflect her deep gratitude to Morehead-Cain and Carolina surfaced while estate planning. The alumna has made a $5 million irrevocable gift to Morehead-Cain, and beyond that, "will treat the Foundation on par" with her children, she said.

"Every good thing that has happened in my life can be traced back to the investment this Foundation made in me," Jen said. "I often think of Mr. Morehead's generosity in sharing his good fortune and his name with students he would never know. As a student, this instilled in me a love for this program, similar to the way that a child loves her parents. Now, as an alumna, I love this program the way a parent loves her children."

Sean Nguyen '21 and Melanie Godinez-Cedillo '22 will serve as the scholar representatives this year on the 19-member MCSF board.

Morehead-Cain's Board of Trustees has also elected Jen, as chair of the MCSF board, to serve as an ex officio Foundation trustee. The decision, which went into effect in July, was intended to more effectively connect the two governing bodies as a cohesive unit with shared goals and practices, according to David Wright '80, chair of the Board of Trustees.

ALUM-TO-SCHOLAR MENTORING PROGRAM

Sean Nguyen '21 on His Connection with Mentor Angela Liu '04

My hair was gelled, and I sat up straight. I was overdressed for a Friday morning in October, but with good reason. Today, I had my first meeting with my alumni mentor, Angela Liu '04. I didn't know much about Angela, but I knew she was exceptional. Angela was a double Tar Heel and had made partner at her global law firm. As a fellow Asian American interested in law, I had prepared a two-hour-long list of questions for our first meeting. I wanted to leave a good impression!

Angela answered my FaceTime with a cheerful hello as she poured herself a bowl of cereal. Within five minutes of chatting, I realized my nerves, formality, and hair gel were all a bit unnecessary.

My mentoring relationship with Angela has meant an important friendship—a friendship that's allowed me to gaze into a future profession, its work-life dynamic, and its cultural barriers.

When I first spoke with Angela in fall 2019, I had just returned from a semester interning in Congress in Washington, D.C. My semester “abroad” had ignited my interest in law, but I knew little about the legal profession. My mentoring relationship with Angela changed this.

Throughout our seven calls—each one lasting well over our scheduled 30 minutes—Angela explained with thoughtful care and good humor what legal terms such as litigator, deposition, and arbitration meant. She shared with me the ins and outs of being a litigator at a global law firm. Angela explained how associates make partner and what makes a good associate. As someone seeking to learn about the corporate law world, I found Angela to be a treasure trove of information.

Our mentoring relationship has also provided me with a candid exposure to how Angela approaches balance in her life. Since coming to UNC, I have had plenty of informational interviews with Carolina alumni. However, before being paired with Angela, few of these conversations had provided me with a reliable pulse of a profession’s work-life dynamic.

Upon our second and third calls, I began asking Angela these types of questions. What did her weekends look like? How did she manage time for a relationship with her family? How many hours did she typically sleep at night? In response, Angela has always been forthright with me. She’s shared with me the cracks in our institutional systems, including access to the ballot box, while arguing to secure voting rights (virtually) before the Tennessee Supreme Court during the COVID-19 pandemic. She’s been candid about the corporate law world’s demanding schedule.

Lastly, my relationship with Angela has helped me better understand the cultural barriers I will face after I graduate and leave Chapel Hill. We have bonded over our shared identities as second-generation Asian Americans.

Being from the South, I don’t meet many Asian American lawyers. After graduating law school in 2009, Angela was the first Asian American woman to make partner at her law firm. She’s shared with me the challenges she’s faced in a largely white, predominantly male profession. Angela and I both grew up as Asian children in predominantly white areas, and we’ve spoken about our shared feeling of marginalization, but how our differences can be our strengths.

In March, I celebrated when Angela got engaged! In May, I beamed with pride as Angela delivered an amazing virtual SEVEN Talk to more than 40 scholars and alumni. Throughout the year, Angela has supported my efforts to establish the UNC Asian American Center every step of the way. As I enter my last year at Carolina, I am excited to continue my mentor pairing with Angela.

Above all, Angela’s mentorship has reinforced a lesson I first learned at Morehead-Cain Finalists’ Weekend in 2017: I will never be alone on my Morehead-Cain adventure. There will always be a fellow scholar, alumnus, or staff member at every corner.

As I graduate Carolina, I plan to pass that lesson forward.

In Memory of Wynn Alexandra Burrus '20

Those who knew Wynn Burrus knew her as a remarkable person and an outstanding scholar. She brought brilliance, warmth, and kindness to all of her endeavors and to everyone she met.

Wynn passed away on Tuesday, September 17, 2019, after being critically ill for several days.

Wynn was a beloved scholar and member of the Carolina community. During her three years as a Tar Heel, she held multiple roles in student government and started her own tutoring business for high school students. But she spoke most fondly of Hope for Hope—the organization she founded that collects pen pal letters written by UNC students for children attending Hope Charter Leadership Academy in Raleigh. Many times, Wynn drove the letters the forty minutes from Chapel Hill to Raleigh herself.

Wynn was also well known in the Raleigh community where she grew up. A graduate of Needham B. Broughton High School, she founded a program that provides service opportunities to special needs students. Wynn also helped start Special Needs Dances for students across Wake County.

The Morehead-Cain community is heartbroken by her loss. Our love goes out to her family, her many friends, and all those she touched.

IN MEMORY OF SARAH DUDLEY SASZ '21

In Memory of Sarah “Sally” Dudley Sasz '21

Sally Sasz will be remembered for her kind heart, open and generous spirit, and thoughtful and creative mind. She passed away on Monday, July 6, 2020, during a hike in Utah. She was 21 years old.

The art history and English major loved telling stories through art and other media, as reflected in the many roles she held in high school (Charlotte Country Day) and at Carolina, including being an Arts Ambassador for UNC Arts Everywhere, an editor and board member for the undergraduate magazine Cellar Door, and a DJ for WXYC 89.3 FM. Sally's volunteer work on campus and in the Chapel Hill community focused on helping those in need, sharing her love of art, and environmental activism.

Sally was known for being a supportive classmate and compassionate friend. Her charisma was “effervescent” and her personality was one that put others at ease through her own innate confidence, integrity, and humility. Sally was also known as a well-traveled, fearless, and bicycle-loving adventurer. Wherever her curiosity took her, she always spread joy through her positive outlook on life.

The Morehead-Cain community is heartbroken by this tragic loss. Our love goes out to Sally's parents, her sisters, her extended family, and her many friends.

2010s

2010 | First international scholars selected from expanded international candidate pool (United World College schools, American Schools abroad, and Turkish schools)

2012 | Sixth Morehead-Cain Alumni Forum: "All the Fun of College. None of the Stress."

2012 | Leadership phase of the TOGETHER Campaign begins; goal is to raise $25 million in gifts and pledges as well as $25 million in planned gifts; goal is reached ahead of the 2018 target date

2015 | Seventh Morehead-Cain Alumni Forum and official launch of the TOGETHER Campaign: "Championing the Lifelong Journey"

2016 | David Wright '80 becomes the first Morehead-Cain Alumnus to be elected chair of the Foundation board of trustees

9 Rachel Mazzyck Pfeifer '02 gave the keynote address at Final Selection Weekend 2019; Rachel is the first female Morehead-Cain alum elected to the Morehead-Cain board of trustees; she is also the youngest and the first Black trustee of the Foundation

2016 | Trustees and staff undertake a full review of the four criteria for the scholarship and decide to focus the majority of the selection process on the character and leadership criteria; academics and physical vigor are threshold criteria decided at professional reader level; staff pursues additional methods of assessment to complement written application and panel interviews

2017 | In-depth alumni engagement research done pro bono by the Boston Consulting Group, courtesy of BCG Senior Partner and Managing Director Mike Deimler '86

2018 | Eighth Morehead-Cain Alumni Forum: "TOGETHER. Again."

2018 | New version of the MC Network is launched, featuring live feed; database of members searchable by location, careers, interests, etc.; news; events; groups (geographic, affinity); job board

2019 | Regional interviews in North Carolina are replaced by asynchronous video interviews for North Carolina semifinalists; the selection process becomes 100 percent consistent for all applicants: application form, video interview, Final Selection Weekend in-person interviews and group activities

2019 | Morehead-Cain Alumni-to-Scholar Mentoring Program launched

2019 | New goal established for the TOGETHER Campaign: $75 million; goal is surpassed by alumni in time for the 75th anniversary of the Foundation

2019 | Rachel Mazyck Pfeifer '02 is the first female Morehead-Cain alum to join the board of trustees; she is also the youngest and the first Black trustee of the Foundation
